Graf Completes Round World Tour

Globe Circling Air Craft Back At Lakehurst

To Take Off Saturday for Home Port, Minus Services of Commander.

ECKENER REMAINS

Landing Completes First Aerial Tour of the World.

NAVAL Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J., August 29.—(AP)—Looping the loop around the world, one of the greatest exploits in flying history, the Graf Zeppelin settled to earth at 7:33 o'clock this morning, just 21 days, seven hours and 33 minutes after leaving on her 20,000 mile journey. Actual flying time, deducting time spent on the ground at Friedrichshafen, Tokyo and Los Angeles, the only three stops made, was 11 days, 23 hours and 14 minutes. Both flying and elapsed time set a new record. The last leg of the flight, Los Angeles to Lakehurst was covered in 51:59. The ship overshoot the landing field and the 450 sailors and marines of the ground crew and they had to scupper across the field after the ropes lowered from the Graf at 7:07. Once seized, however, the lowering of the dirigible was performed with expert precision. The crowd was handied without trouble, the entire scene being one lacking in excitement. The landing was made at 7:14, at 40 minutes later the big ship was safely housed in the hangar, empty because of the navy's Los Angeles being at the Cleveland air races except for two navy blimps shoved over against the north wall of the great arched structure. The passengers remained in the cabin of the ship until after it was taken to the hangar and then removed for customs and immigration inspection, supplemental to that at Los Angeles. A special train was waiting on a siding to take them to New York as soon as this formality was completed. The craft left Lakehurst on her great adventure at 11:10, p. m., August 7, making the 4200 miles to Friedrichshafen in 55:24. After four days on the ground refueling, the flight to Tokyo, 6880 miles, was made in 101:50 minutes. The ship held there five days refueling and repairing damage to the rear motor pontoon caused when removing the ship from the hangar. The 5800 miles from Tokyo to Los Angeles consumed 78:58, and the final lap completed today was started after less than a full day on the ground for refueling.

Eckener to Visit in U. S.
Completing the round the world flight with the dirigible Commandor Hugo Eckener today announced he would not return to Friedrichshafen but would return to Lakehurst where he would sail Saturday afternoon with Captain Ernest Lehmann in command. Dr. Eckener plans to spend two weeks in the United States and will visit in Washington and in Akron, Ohio.

Tenement Fire Takes Three Lives

Firemen In Heroic Rescue of Man Trapped On Third Floor.

NEW YORK, N. Y., August 29.—(AP)—Three persons were killed and injured early today in a fire which destroyed a four-story tenement house on the lower west side. First Lieutenant Michael Coyne, suspended by two of the men of his company, swung from an adjoining house and rescued Moritz Drumwasser, 48, trapped in a third floor window by the flames. Chas. Hollander, 65, was killed when he leaped from his apartment on the fourth floor to the back yard. The bodies of two others were found in a third floor apartment. They had been suffocated and burned. Of the injured, mostly they were suffering from inhaling smoke.

The Club for this presentation has drafted the services of some masculine talent to aid in the performance, and a glance at the list of those taking part will convince you the club is preparing a real entertainment for Hope amusement lovers.

Another Venire In Strike Trials

Court Orders Additional 300 Men Summoned for Jury Duty.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., August 29.—(AP)—Five jurors were in the box when court recessed for the noon hour today in the trial of the 16 strikers and union officials accused of the murder of O. F. Aderholt, Gastonia chief of police. The court today ordered a second special venire of 300 to be called for service when the first special venire of 200 should be exhausted. This action appreciably delayed court procedure this morning and only 23 talesmen had been examined up to noon.

Liberal Sunday Appears Winning

Sunday Amusement Adherents Roll Up 6 to 1 Lead In Straw Vote.

Liberal votes began to roll up a commanding majority in favor of Sunday amusements, on the second count of The Star's straw vote this morning. The tabulation this morning before checking and verifying, was 32 votes for Sunday amusements, and 5 against. The same ratio was maintained for the proposed amendment to the state law to give cities local option on Sunday regulation, as advocated editorially by The Star. All readers of The Star are requested to fill out the ballot at the bottom of this page and mail it to The Star office, 217 South Main street, Hope. The vote is being tabulated on two scores, the first representing the city only, and the second the territory served by The Star. The vote in the city will be thoroughly checked for duplications and voting qualifications, before the final result is announced, in order to make as fair a test as possible of local sentiment.

Thousands of spectators were on hand to greet the winner, who was immediately presented with floral wreath.

Grass Fires Are Expensive To City

Bill This Month Will Run To Well Over $400 Officials Say.

This is the season of the year when city officials begin to fret and fume about the expense thrust upon them by careless householders who threaten destruction to property by burning rubbish or grass too close to buildings. Fire Chief Barr stated today that it costs the city right at $30 to have the department answer a call—and that's rather a stiff premium to pay because some one gets careless with a match. Naturally, the department desires to hold property loss from fire down to a minimum, but the $300 expense incurred yesterday by the department answering two grass fire alarms could easily have been prevented by the exercise of a little prudence. John Ridgill, member of the council and chairman of the fire and hose committee, urges that householders be more careful. The season, he says, has been extremely dry and there is greater danger of fire spreading than in average years, with ensuing property loss. "Just watch your grass and rubbish fires," he urges, "for every time you don't turn in alarm you've helped save city taxpayers $30."

Suicide Method Is Unique But Worked

Stick of Dynamite Held To Ear Produces the Desired Result.

PARIS, Ark., August 29.—(AP)—Garrett Davis, 48, a miner ended his life here today by holding a stick of dynamite, with cap and lighted fuse attached, to his ear. According to Coroner Sam Meredith, Davis was despondent over domestic difficulties and his inability to secure a position. The body was found in the yard of his home by neighbors attracted to the scene by the explosion.

Wilson's Are Home From Korean Stay

Hempstead County Boy and Family Visiting At Old Home.

Dr. Manton Wilson and family arrived in Columbia Wednesday for a visit with friends and relatives after a stay of 21 years in Korea, where the doctor served as medical missionary. After a short stay, they will return to Richmond, Va., at which place they will make their future home.

The Big Fellows Begin to Arrive

Seth Crews, on route two, south of Hope, today brought in the largest straight Tom Watson melon ever grown. It weighs 100 1-2 pounds and is on display at Gibson's drug store.

Folks talk about watermelons several months in the year but along about this season, just before "The frost gets on the punkin" and the toddler's put in shock," real watermelons begin to be seen. Wednesday A. B. Turner, one of the county's real melon growers, brought in a straight Tom Watson weighing 93 and 1-2 pounds, one of the largest—if not the largest Watson—ever shown here. And then, to make the day complete, brought in a Triumph weighing 130 1-2 pounds. Which you will admit, makes a fair pair of melons, though the larger is not not expected to be in the prize-winning class for the year.

John Martin, of the local gas company bought the larger of the two, shipping it to New York.

British Restore Order In the East

Take Firm Hold and Any Further Outbreaks Improbable.

(By the Associated Press)
British army, naval and air forces today held Palestine in control except for marauding parties in outlying villages, after six days of fighting between Arabs and Jews, growing out of a religious controversy over the Wailing Wall. Threats of trouble from the Dedoies of Trans-Jordan were effectively checked, and the population of Palestine, Jew, Arab and British, will rapidly be disarmed. All essential service, telegraph, telephone and railway communication remained undamaged during the fighting and communication today is unhampered. The Wailing Wall question is expected to be taken up with the League of Nations at its forthcoming meeting, petitions pouring in from Moslem and Jew urging that such action be taken.

Columbus Night Fire Causes Loss

J. S. Wilson Heavy Loser In Fire of Unknown Origin.

A fire of undetermined origin on the J. S. Wilson farm near Columbus last midnight caused loss of approximately $4,000 with no insurance. Property destroyed was a big hay barn and a garage, there being 2,000 bales of alfalfa-Bermuda hay and quite a lot of machinery stored in the barn building. The property was a total loss. Only heroic work by neighbors attracted the scene by the flames saved the house and other buildings from going with the barn. Mr. Wilson is at a loss to account for the fire, as no one had known to be around the barn for several hours. The fire was discovered about midnight but had attained such headway it was impossible to do anything save protect other buildings.

Mr. Harmon, who is from Arkadelphia, was introduced by Chap Wellman, presiding in the absence of President John P. Cox. The minister spoke briefly on his acquaintance with luncheon clubs, praising their motives and the discipline which they imposed on the business life of the community. Roy Allen and Parks Fisher tied for the attendance prize, which was eventually awarded to Mr. Allen.

Motor Factories Are Inspected By South Arkansans

Tourists Reach South Bend, Ind., Home of the Studebaker Car.

SCENES ON BORDER

Amusing Moments When Arkansas Travelers Meet Custom Officers.

By GROVER ZINN
Special Correspondent, The Star
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 29.—Completing the second lap of their return trip, the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce travelers arrived in South Bend early today after a day spent in visiting the industrial section of Detroit. Today's schedule calls for a trip through the plant of the Studebaker company and other industries for which this city is noted. The group was met at the station by representatives of the South Bend Chamber of Commerce, of which George Farmin, former Arkansas man is secretary. Mr. Farmin served as secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at Little Rock and later at El Dorado. If the citizens of the section have been developed to a high point industrially, the farms have kept their pace also. Hardly does the special train bearing the Arkansans pass out of environs of the cities until broad expanses of ripening grain and big dairy farms pass in review. Farmers in this section expect to reap a rich harvest. Friday the tourists will visit for a few hours in Chicago, leaving late in the day for St. Louis, the last stop before entering on the home stretch.

80-Mile Voyage

TORONTO, Canada, (By Mail)—Those members of the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce crusaders whose acquaintance with water travel has heretofore been limited to trips on the good Steamer Ouachita manned by the veteran riverman Capt. L. V. Cooley had their experiences considerably widened when they crossed Lake Ontario en route from Niagara Falls, N. Y., to Toronto, a distance of approximately 80 miles. The trip was to the tourists one of the most delightful thus far, giving the Arkansans a chance to relax from the cramped quarters they had occupied on the special train that pulled out from Camden Wednesday, August 21.

The trippers traveled on the Chippewa, a 300-foot steamer of the Canada Steamship Line that plies the lake through the summer during the tourist season. Down the Niagara river and across the lake, the water journey requires about three hours. Members of the party whose conception of a perfect industrial tour is to sit in easy lounges on the deck of a steamer while the cool breezes waft memories of springtime in the Southland, found surcease from their cares while others attuned to more strenuous forms of entertainment cleared the deck and held forth with the waltz, fox trot and other forms of dancing, to the popular airs heard on the radio and talking machine in nearly any South Arkansas home.

Professor Ellison, who has proved himself a strict master in the school that is a part of the tour asked that the press in reporting this item be certain to say that this is a newly added part of the course of study.

"School" Is Held
In connection with the Ellison school, it should be here chronicled that classes in subjects pertaining to industry and agriculture as well as geography, politics, international customs inspections and the proper method of approaching traffic officers in a strange city after all the traffic laws of said city have been broken are being held regularly. As must be expected, the school teachers are standing at the head of the class most of the time, with many of those who know how to figure at a glance the interest due on a note or the rate on an insurance policy, appear doomed as far as getting decent grades is concerned. The booster spirit of the United States as exemplified by the civic clubs and chambers of commerce has got its grip on Canada too. Here in the land of John Bull's first cousin, where thirsty throats from across the southern boundary make good business for the Scotch distillerie, you have to discount figures just as in the States. ## Grand Jury Has Made No Report

In Session Three Days and No Report To Court Has Been Made.

NASHVILLE, August 29.—(AP)—The Howard county grand jury convening here Monday morning, up to Wednesday night had made no report to the court as to its progress or activities, though such a report is expected to be made before court adjourns Thursday afternoon. The court's charge to the grand jury called for close investigation of recent dipping vat dynamitings in Howard county and it is thought the body's searching inquiry into these outrages is delaying their reporting to the court.

Two Children Shot By Crazy Father

Holds Officers At Bay for Nearly Hour But Is Captured.

Officers Strike At Bombing Ring

Answer Threats By Returning Indictments Against Bombers.

CHICAGO, August 29.—(AP)—A grand jury bomb, with a fuse of six indictments, sputtered in criminal court today as officers started a clean-up of Chicago's bomb ringsters. State's Attorney John A. Swanson, himself a victim of a bombing explosion, just before the election, has ordered the arrest of six men charged with being head of a bomb syndicate and whom he holds responsible for many of Chicago's bombing outrages.

A Few Acres Like This and Cotton Growing Would Cease to Be Attractive

When a fellow fights crabgrass for 40 years and then meets Mr. Boll Weevil and all his kin, growing cotton as a means of livelihood doesn't seem altogether attractive and that, perhaps, is one cause of the trend in this territory in recent years to truck farming, with special reference to the Watermelon industry. Just as a sample, let's do a bit of figuring, using the actual experience of J. F. Mangum, of near Washington, as a predicate for the argument. Mr. Mangum had one hill of watermelons to which he devoted only the usual cultural care and approved cultural methods for melon production. He trimmed the growth on the vines to three melons and when they were pulled and marketed one weighed 58 pounds, one 60 and one 90. A total of 217 pounds from one hill. Now, in raising real melons here, growers plant from 130 to 150 hills to the acre. Say the former figure is standard, and each hill produces 217 pounds of marketable growth. That's roughly 28,000 pounds per acre. This year the price ranged to $1.75 per hundred but fix it at 75 cents per 100 standard and your acre of melons brings a gross of $210.00. Did somebody say something about planting more cotton next year?

Times Change — Men Do Not

TIMES may change, but the fine traditions of heroism of the sea still remain.

One finds the proof in the thrilling story of the rescue of three men and one woman from the wave-tossed waters of Lake Erie after a Cleveland-Detroit passenger plane had been forced down and sunk the other day. One man—John Kasper, a co-pilot of the airplane—was lost, but the other three were saved.

Weighted down with heavy flying clothes and heavy boots, but aided by a life preserver, Cy Caldwell, the chief pilot of the plane, swam four miles through rough seas to the nearest steamship lane.

Caldwell was a mere dot on the horizon, bobbing up and down with the waves, when Allan Emerson, eagle-eyed second mate of the Canadian freighter Midland King, chanced to sight him. Quickly, the ship put about and Caldwell was hoisted aboard where he told of the other survivors still out there in the water.

Captain Roy Burke, master of the Midland King, turned his vessel and raced for the scene. His powerful searchlights, penetrated the darkness and revealed Mrs. Robt Little, a passenger, struggling in the water.

One glance at her predicament was enough for Walter Joslin, first mate of the Midland King. Without even waiting to don a life preserver, Joslin dived over the side and swam toward her. She was so exhausted that she could do little to aid him and he soon became exhausted, too.

Sam Wilkinson, a wheelsman, saw what was happening and dived overboard to aid the fast-weakening Joslin. Wilkinson, however, was swept around the stern by the strong current and barely managed to save himself by grabbing a life preserver that was thrown to him.

Joslin, with a half-unconscious woman on his arm, made his slow and painful way to a rope ladder, dropped over the Midland King's side. Supporting Mrs. Little with one hand, he grasped this. The waves tossed him about as though they were trying to snatch him to his death, but he held on with one hand until his arm was nearly pulled from its socket and the bone nearly broken. Then he passed Mrs. Little up to Second Mate Emerson, who had descended to the foot of the ladder. Slowly, he followed them up the side of the ship.

Meanwhile, C. A. Lupold, another airplane passenger, was being picked up by another ship where much the same scene was being enacted.

Yes, the glorious traditions of the sea still live, even in this modern day when survivors from ill-fated air liners are rescued from the deep. Times are different, but the cry for aid still finds willing and heroic rescuers ready to respond.

Thank God that even in this day of advanced progress and modern science we still have men who are real men!

Example In Peace

THERE is a bit of irony in the Russo-Chinese situation growing out of the seizure of the Far Eastern Railway. It now appears that the dispute, which statesmen throughout the world feared would bring on war, will now be amicably settled.

The United States and other nations do not recognize Soviet Russia as a nation; the world looks on China as a conglomeration of warring factions due to the almost constant civil war in recent years.

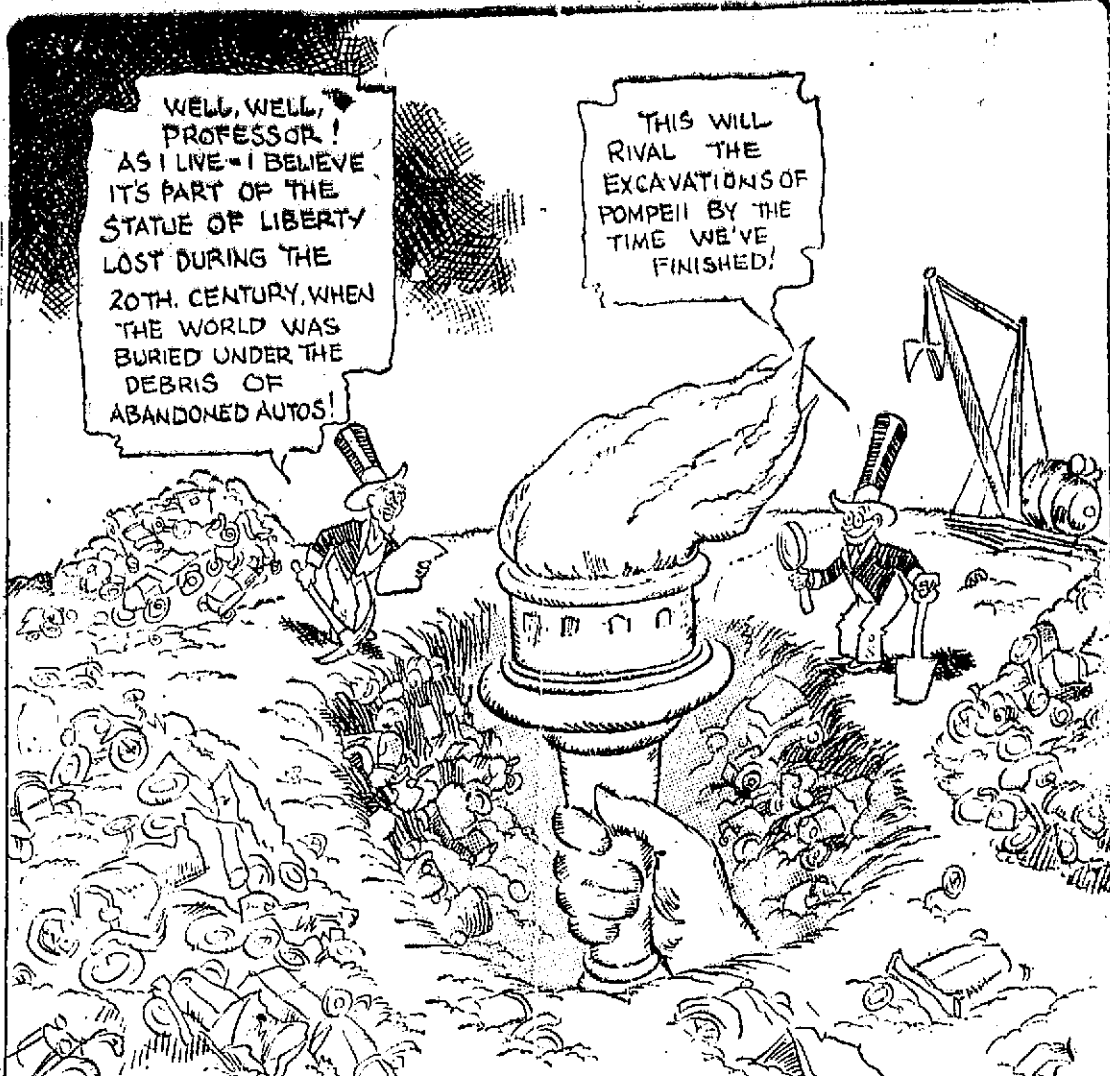

And yet these two nations, looked down upon by the so-called civilized world, appear to be settling their dispute, according to the highest standards of civilization. The dispute is one that has threatened trouble for the last 25 years and was a factor in the Russo-Japanese war. Possibly it is just as well that the recent crisis did not involve two "orthodox" nations.

Fire Menace

CIGARETTE butts and cigar stubs are discarded at the rate of 170,000 a minute in the United States, says the Department of Agriculture.

Tests have shown that a fire can be started from these "discards" with a wind of only three or four miles an hour. Here is a possible fire menace that should be watched carefully. With forest fires raging in several sections of the west, the need for care in heavily wooded sections is obvious but it also true that caution is necessary in the home, office and city buildings.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—On these hot nights in Washington officials and diplomats who must stay in town through the summer are often to be seen in white flannels, dancing and dining outdoors at what appears to be the only bright spot in the capital's night life.

In the absence of any formal social functions, swimming and dancing parties have become popular. There are several pools and dance floors scattered about Washington, but the place the folks out of the Social Register and the congressional Directory favor is the so-called Plage Deauville, alongside the Wardman Park swimming pool.

The place, which someone says means beach, is of cement and is dotted with large beach umbrellas which are handy enough in the daytime. A raised dancing floor overlooks the layout and between dances the diners watch the bathers swim and dive.

On an evening recently your correspondent observed an ambassador and two ministers tangoing gracefully there, with smaller diplomatic try of every hand. So many of the Latin-American diplomats go in for this sort of thing that the Deauville orchestra plays many tangos. The dancers who can't tango seem to get along just the same. Senior Don Eduardo Diaz de Medina, the Bolivian minister, is one of the most enthusiastic tangoists. One can also recommend other seniors, including First Secretary Oscar Blanco Viel of the Chilean embassy; First Secretary George de la Barra of the Bolivian legation, and Jose Orrego of the Pan-American Union. Among other addicts are Columbian Minister Enrique Olaya and Persian Minister Mirza Khan Meftah.

Among the diplomatic women one likes to watch are Mme. De la Barra, Mme. Sany Pasha—who comes with her husband, the Egyptian minister—and Mme. Popovic, the Rumanian legation secretary.

The home folks also make a good showing, however. George W. Wickersham, head of the Hoover law enforcement commission, frequently entertains on the banks of the pool on evenings when he is here, although he doesn't dance. Senator Sam Shortridge of California also prefers to look on. But Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York does a mean fox-trot and other nationally known figures are to be seen from time to time.

Turning from expensive amusement to cheap amusement, one considers the Japanese at the other side of the world. Consul Leo D. Sturgeon at Tokio reports to the Department of Commerce on the operation of new Japanese department stores.

Instead of organizing theatre parties, groups of Japanese often organize department store parties. The atmosphere of modernity and luxury of the big new stores fascinates the public, and hordes of people come in for sightseeing tours with no intention of buying anything. Tourists parties from the country, family groups and bodies of school students are to be seen in the more attractive stores at almost any time. The store owners like that. In summer they all throw open large roof gardens to their visitors. Visitors to one Tokio store have numbered as high as 200,000 a day, with 60,000 Oas a minimum for any one day.

Paul Mayo, third secretary of the United States embassy at Brussels, has been appointed associate professor of social science at the University of Denver.

RAMON NAVARRO COMES IN SINGING FEATURE

A piano, two cases of sheet music, ten cases of canned coffee and an electric percolator were some of the ingredients that went into the making of the latest drama of the South Seas, "The Pagan," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Ramon Navarro romance which comes to the Saenger theatre Friday and Saturday as a sound synchronized film with singing sequences and which introduces Navarro as a singer on the audible screen.

Profiting by his experiences in the tropics during the making of "White Shadows in the South Seas," W. S. Van Dyke, the director, took along American coffee, so that the company wouldn't have to drink the "fried coffee" of the islands. They were several months in the filming of the drama, adapted from John Russell's famous novel.

The piano and music were taken along by Navarro to continue his operatic practice while on the tropic location.

There is no cloud but hath a silver lining—
No gloom that does not hide heaven's radiant blue;
It is a passing cloud—the heart's weeping
Must end in victory, if that heart be true.
For God is just and life the lesson learning
Which Wisdom gives to mark the upward climb
Of soul toward truth—nor can our backward turning
Hinder or haste the coming of His time.

The SHINING TALENT

By ELEANOR EARLY © 1929 BY NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED Molly burnham, charming and wealthy has suggested a trial engagement. The fiancé on approval is Bob Newton, who happens to be the widowed husband of Molly's nearest friend. Molly is not in love with Bob. But she is very much in love with his little daughter, and the only way, apparently, that she can keep the child is to marry the father.

Bob, to prove how ruthless he might be has already called at Molly's flat with a policeman, to demand the surrender of little Rita who lives with her. After the fiancé has subsided, Molly asks Bob to return the next day, when they may discuss matters amicably. Then she proposes the trial engagement, with the stipulation that the experiment shall be kept secret until such time as they may decide to marry. She suggests a period of three months as the probable time required to ascertain the practicality of marriage.

Now Go On With the Story CHAPTER XLIV

Eventually Bob has agreed to the trial engagement. And he began, immediately, being very nice indeed. Molly had spoken of a painting she had seen and loved in Florence. As though he were a genius, and waved a magic sceptre, Bob procured a very fair copy. It was La Maddalena by Carlo Dolci.

The usual conceptions of Magdalene, as Molly had seen them in various galleries, were of older women, with tragic faces. But Carlo Dolci had painted a young girl, of high school age, who had been bad, and was sorry. She was a beautiful, intense child. Her eyes were dark and passionate, and her lips were full, and fashioned for kissing. There was a holy light in her face, and it had been transfigured by a great love. Such a girl might have lived in any age. And in any town. Molly thought of her as a girl of the centuries. She had wanted to procure a copy ever since she saw the original.

Molly knew nothing at all about paintings. She had seen only two in her life that she would have liked particularly to own. The first was La Maddalena. And the other was Correggio's Virgin Adoring the Baby.

Now Bob had found the Magdalene for her, and he had not forgotten that she coveted the most exquisite of Madonnas. He thought he knew where a copy might be obtained. A modern reproduction. Molly was touched and delighted.

She hung her lovely Magdalene where the light played on her upturned face. And, because Bob had given her the beautiful thing, she felt—almost—as though she could love him because he had brought her unexpected happiness.

Bob was proving a rather pathetic lover. Like O. Henry's waitress who longed for romance, he tried too hard to please, to please. He bought Molly lollipops and peanuts, because she had said she liked them.

And he took her to all sorts of odd and dirty places to eat. Molly knew that he hated restaurants that pretended to be Bohemian. She knew that a soiled tablecloth could ruin a meal for him. And that arty places were his pet abomination. But, because she liked poking about he took her to inns that once were barns, and still smelled slightly horsey. And a kitchen where the guests sat about a long table, and ate from common dishes. They went to a French place, where napkins were never used. And to an Armenian cafe, where the chef wore a dirty apron and waited on table. And, all the time, Molly knew that Bob would have sold all Bohemia for fresh linen and immaculate service.

He hated sports. But he bought season tickets for the Braves, cause Molly was a baseball fan, and had a weakness for Hank Gowdy.

"You're too good, Bob!" she protested. "We're always doing the things I like. It's time you took me to something intellectual. How about an art exhibit, or a musical? You must be bored to death with my lowbrow entertainment."

But that evening he bought tickets for the circus. And the next night he took her to a movie.

"The trouble is," she told herself, "he's much too nice. He's letting me walk all over him. He just simply isn't natural. No man could go on forever, pretending to like things he despises. It's pathetic, too, the way he makes believe he's having a good time."

And then it was she thought of O. Henry's waitress.

"Poor Bob. I suppose that's the way I was with Jack. It's probably always that way when there are two people, and one is ever so much more in love than the other. The one who wants terribly to be loved tries too hard to please, to please. It never pays."

But, since pity is akin to love, Molly was beginning to love Bob a little. It was, undoubtedly, because she was sorry for him. His pathetic attempts to rouse her affection made her almost cry.

Every time he called he brought her a gift. Odd little things that he had a way of picking up. A bit of old damask, or a piece of rare china. A first edition of Salome, with illustrations by Aubrey Beardsley. And once a Venetian glass scone from the Doge's palace. Bob loved beautiful things, and he had the happy faculty of finding them.

Sometimes he sent her orchids. Not the common catleya, but the yellow marshallianum. They suited her best, he said.

He had rare appreciation of paintings and of music. He loved flowers, and knew them by their Latin names. He had made a study of folk lore. And he knew a great deal about the various religions of the world. He talked of Buddha and Confucius and Mohammed, as people chat of their contemporaries. Molly was beginning to find him very interesting. He knew so many things!

He told her facts she had never heard before, and she found them amusing and interesting. He told her, for instance, that every person has 50 million arithmetical ancestors. And that impressed Molly so much that she wrote a verse and called it Fifty Million.

The day it was printed, Red telephoned. "They tell me you've a verse in Vanity Fair. How long since you've been writing poetry?"

"Oh, it was only a little thing," she explained. "I tried to do it like Dorothy Parker. The idea was cute, but it wasn't mine. It was Bob's. He says we have 50 million arithmetical ancestors. Sort of breath-taking, isn't it? Imagine taking after 50 million people!"

"You're seeing a lot of Newton these days, aren't you?"

"Well, you've deserted me," she bantered, "and I crave attention."

"You turned me down," he reminded her. "But, just to show there's no hard feelings, I'm going to tell you something. Jack Wells is getting in town tonight. He ducked the reporters in New York, and he's kept out of sight since he returned from Europe. There was a story that he'd taken an apartment in Greenwich Village, but nobody could locate him. Anyhow the office had a tip this afternoon. He has a reservation on the Merchant's."

Molly's heart was beating madly. "My goodness, Red, what are you telling me for? He's not coming to see me!"

"I don't know about that. Anyhow, here's the dope. I'm supposed to meet the train, and get an exclusive interview. Statement about Mr. Bulwer-Eaton, and all that sort of thing. If you say the word, I'll steer Wells up to your place. Though maybe you'd like to get Newton out of the way. I haven't forgotten what you told me the night that sap brought the cop around. I'd hate to see you get tied up with him, Molly, with a couple decent eggs like me and Wells around."

"Sh!," she cautioned. "Don't talk like that over the phone, Red. You shouldn't say mean things about Bob. Honestly you shouldn't."

"Why not?"

"Oh, I don't know," she floundered. "You just shouldn't, that's all."

"All right. I won't. But how about Wells? Shall I bring him around?"

Molly hesitated. It wouldn't do, she knew, be quite fair to Bob. She had promised to play the game. He had consented to a trial engagement, on tacit condition that she observe the rules. It was hardly

Plant Grows Machines

The teasel plant, thistle-like crop of California, New York and Oregon, has the distinction of being grown solely for the manufacture of machines. The burrs of this plant are attached to a machine used to produce a fine nap in woolen cloth. Near San Jose, Calif., they are commercially cultivated, picked and dried. From here they are shipped to woolen mills and attached to the napping machines. The cloth to be napped is passed under the burrs and the burrs catch the surface of the fine cloth, pulling out fine hairs. Edna Howell is shown here with an armful of the burrs and a close-up of one of them is shown in inset.

Fans Keen To See Tonight's Events

More Interest In Card This Week Than In Any Other.

If you don't think there's any interest in tonight's boxing card at the rink, just pick out a favorite in either of the matches, say something and wait for results. You won't have to wait long.

The Walker-Higgs bout is the one attracting plenty of attention. Both the "Preacher" and "The Black Devil" are well known here, each having a following of fight fans, and with feeling between the two considerably less than friendly it looks as if a real boxing battle will be on.

This morning there was a dispute between them as to whether they would go six or eight rounds, and the only agreement they reached was they didn't care if it was fought for all night for it wouldn't be more than three rounds, each insisting he'd lean against the ropes and watch the other take a nap while the referee was doing a count-ten stunt.

The bout in which Johnny Hall appears, if his opponent measures up to advance notices, will be a wow, while the main eventers, Tillman and Taylor, promise action galore. And in looking over the card, don't miss that line where it says something about Siki and Terry. Those two boys stage a real fight and their mix tonight stacks up as about the warmest they have put on. Which it will be some battle if they do.

Famous British Aviatix Injured

Plane Crashes Through Roof of Factory With Pilot and Mechanic.

CLEVELAND, August 29.—(AP)—Lady Mary Heath, famous British aviatix, was injured, perhaps fatally, in the crash of her plane through the roof of a factory here today.

Rushed to the emergency clinic hospital Lady Heath was found to have suffered a probable fracture of the skull. A long cut on her scalp and numerous cuts on her body, broken bones and possible internal injury made her condition critical, attending physicians said.

J. Erwin Kirk, Cleveland plane mechanic who was riding with her, was also injured but not seriously. The two were riding high over Cleveland when for some unexplained reason the plane went into a nose dive, striking the roof of the factory, a two-story building on the east side and plunging through to become a twisted mass of wreckage.

Lady Heath was one of the distinguished visitors to the national air races being held here, and had entered one of the close course events for women.

No workers were in the factory at the time, the accident occurring during their lunch hour.

Wives Cause Trouble

This is a tale dealing with the trouble that wives can cause on a ball club, which was referred to recently in this department. The real names of the ball players involved in this little tale will not be given for obvious reasons. We'll call them Smith and Jones.

Smith was a high-salaried man and he was lavish in providing swell attire for his wife. Jones was a good ball player, too, but he didn't make enough money to provide the luxuries that Mrs. Smith displayed.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

The two players were not on the same ball club or in the same league, but they happened to connect in the same town on an exhibition trip one spring several years ago.

A Friendly Little Tea
The wives of most of the ball players were with them and they arranged an afternoon tea while their husbands were working.

Mrs. Smith came down from her room wearing a magnificent polo coat and the other ladies raved about it.

"That coat is gorgeous," Mrs. Jones said. "I wish Bill was making enough money to get me one like that."

"Do you really like it? Mrs. Smith asked.

Mrs. Jones said she really liked it.

Came a Knock on the Door

The ball players returned from the park and went to their rooms. The ladies were still in the tea room.

Jones was sitting in his room writing a letter when a knock came on the door. It was a bell boy bearing a neatly bound package.

"What's this?" Jones asked.

"It's something for Mrs. Jones, with the compliments of Joe Smith," the bell boy told him.

Jones opened the package and found the magnificent polo coat that Mrs. Smith had worn earlier in the afternoon.

Murder in His Heart

Jones flew into a rage and dashed down the corridor to Smith's room. Smith was resting on the bed after a shower and Jones went after him.

"Get up and put up your hands, you big bum. I'm going to let you have one," he said.

"What's the matter with you?" Smith wanted to know.

"Whaddye mean by sending clothes to my wife?" Jones roared. "You may be making a lot of dough but you're not going to send any clothes to my wife."

The Mrs. Explains
Just when physical combat was impending Mrs. Smith entered the room and explained that she had sent the coat to Mrs. Jones as a present, and that Smith didn't know anything about it.

There was no handshaking between the two belligerents, however. They never spoke afterwards and bad feeling resulted on the club with which Jones played when his teammates kept kidding him about the incident. And they are still riding him about the coat.

The Babe paid 20 bucks for the ball with which he hit his 500th home run—A laborer was walking along outside to ball park when the ball fell in front of him—

RIVERSIDES

Why you can save
$2 to $15 on every tire you buy at
WARD'S

MILLIONS OF MOTORISTS, all over the world, already ride on RIVERSIDE Tires—and still more millions soon will.

You will agree that . . . with the Super-Service RIVERSIDE guaranteed for a minimum of 30,000 miles—the First-Quality RIVERSIDE guaranteed for a minimum of 16,000 miles—and the WARDWEAR for 10,000 . . . these tires simply must be tires of quality!

And then—on comparing RIVERSIDE prices with many other high-grade makes that are not officially guaranteed for any specific mileage—you are astonished to find that at Ward's your saving per tire ranges from $2 to $15!

It's surprising. You are frankly puzzled. You discovered, long ago, that there's no such thing as "getting something for nothing." Therefore, when you find, in tires, high quality, provable quality and guaranteed quality . . . coupled with prices so low they seem to contradict all that . . . you "wonder," don't you?

You needn't! For the simple explanation lies in Ward's plan of selling to the user direct.

Instead of cutting quality in any shape or manner, we merely cut out most of the in-between profits of ordinary distribution! Thus you are protected at both ends of your transaction: on Quality, by the guarantees . . . on Economy, by the unusual savings of Ward's low prices.

Do you know of—or need—any better reasons for putting Montgomery Ward & Co. tires on your car? . . . Or any better arguments than these facts proving why you save $2 to $15 on every tire you buy?

Don't buy any other tire unless more miles are guaranteed!

BOBBY JONES

HAS COPPED THE AMATEUR THE LAST FOUR OUT OF FIVE TIMES.

It isn't so much a question of who will win the National amateur golf championship, beginning at Pebble Beach, Del Monte, Calif., Sept. 2, as it is who will keep Bobby Jones, the celebrated Atlanta barrister, from winning it.

In one of the greatest fields ever to compete in this annual contest, Bobby Jones, four-time winner of the event and National open champion in 1929, stands out like Al Capone at a Christian endeavor picnic.

Jones, today, dominates golf as Jack Dempsey did to dominate the fight game. Or like Babe Ruth did, and still does, in baseball. His spot at the very pinnacle—a higher place than has ever been attained by any human in the history of the ancient Scotch sport.

Harry Vardon was a master golfer—a stylist supreme. Jones, on the strength of his marvelous record, crowds Vardon out of the picture. He is the greatest golfer of all time without an argument.

But there is no man so great in his line that he is an absolute sure thing in any one competition. Hence there is hope in the breasts of the horde of amateurs who are heading for the California tournament.

The British amateur champion is Cyril Tolley and four compatriots, Eustace Storey, T. A. Bourne, Lord Charles Hope and Major Guy Colquhoun, are making an unofficial raid for the American crown.

C. Ross Somerville is Canadian amateur champion and an exceptional golfer. He has always been among the leaders when he failed to annex titular honors in tournaments in Canada and the United States.
